

How FIT is your pet?

Did You Know?

Treats Don't Equal Love

Did you know that rewarding your pet with some of your favorite everyday snacks can be harmful to their health? To truly reward your pet, take them out for a walk or engage in a physical activity. If you would still like to treat your pet, healthy snacks like carrots and apples are the best options.

Pudgy Pets Are A Problem

Did you know that nearly 54 million pets are considered either overweight or obese? Like humans, excessive treats and lack of exercise can take a toll on a pet's body and lead to weight gain. In addition to the stress of added weight, potential health risks include heart disease, diabetes, arthritis and shortened life expectancy. If you would still like to treat your pet, healthy snacks, including some vegetables and fruits like carrots and apples might be a good option. Consult your veterinarian for additional healthy treat ideas.
